About Me

I have been in the legal industry since 1987, where I began my legal career as a paralegal. I went on to become a court reporter in 1993. With voice writing schools being few and the need being great, I co-founded the first voice writing court reporting school in South Carolina in 2000.

For close to three decades, I have served the profession as a court reporting firm owner, court reporting instructor, and freelance court reporter. I am a Certified Verbatim Reporter - Master with the National Verbatim Reporters Association, as well as a Certified Court Reporter with the state of Georgia.

I have served in numerous leadership capacities, including President of the SC Court Reporters Association, and I'm a long-standing member of NVRA, SCCRA, and GCRA.

Known as one of the court reporting industry experts and leaders in voice recognition, I conduct private training as well as online webinars and programs. I'm a certified advanced-level EclipseVox™ trainer and frequently speak and present at technology seminars and association conferences.
